

Annual Report, Baskerville Editor

Baskerville was for many years the journal of UK-TUG. It was sizeable, well-formatted and published regularly. However, with the resignation of the editor publication soon ceased, and it has been dead now for a number of years.

This year, I offered to take on the role of editor. The committee agreed to my suggestion and I was co-opted as Baskerville editor. We published our first, small edition in May. The second, slightly larger, edition is currently in its second draft and will be published soon.

Over the next year, if re-elected, I aim to establish proper deadlines, a style guide and a Baskerville class.
